

Sanjeev Kumar @ Rajeev and ors Vs. State and anr

Sanjeev Kumar @ Rajeev and ors Vs. State and anr

SooperKanoon Citation : sooperkanoon.com/1171279

Court : Delhi

Decided On : Sep-19-2014

Judge : Sudershan Kumar Misra

Appellant : Sanjeev Kumar @ Rajeev and ors

Respondent : State and anr

Judgement :

$~30 * IN THE HIGH COURT OF DELHI AT NEW DELHI + CRL.M.C. 4268/2014 SANJEEV KUMAR @ RAJEEV & ORS ..... Petitioners Through Mr. Pradeep Singh, Advocate. versus STATE & ANR Through ..... Respondents Mr. P.K. Mishra, Additional Public Prosecutor. Mr. Rajveer Advocate with R2 in person. ASI Birender Singh. CORAM: HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE SUDERSHAN KUMAR MISRA % SUDERSHAN KUMAR MISRA, J.

(Oral) Crl.M.A. No.14740/2014 Exemption, as prayed for, is allowed, subject to all just exceptions. This application is disposed off. Crl.M.C. No.4268/2014 1. This petition under section 482 Cr.P.C. seeks quashing of FIR No.377/2013 registered on 29.10.2013 at police station Palam Village under sections 406/498-A/34 IPC, on the ground that the matter has been settled between the parties.

2. Issue notice. Mr P.K. Mishra, Additional Public Prosecutor for the State, and Mr. Rajveer, Advocate for respondent No.2, enter appearance and accept notice. The second respondent and petitioners are also identified by the Investigating Officer,

ASI Birender Singh.

3. It is stated that the aforesaid FIR came to be lodged by the complainant on account of certain matrimonial differences that had arisen between the parties, and the matter is still at the stage of investigation. However, at the initial stage itself, the parties are stated to have arrived at an amicable settlement, as a result of which, the complainant also gave statement to the Investigating Officer not to arrest the first petitioner, i.e., her husband. The complainant is also stated to have withdrawn the petition which was moved under Section 12 of the Domestic Violence Act, on 14.08.2014 before the Dwarka Court, New Delhi. The complainant and the first petitioner also have a son, namely, Nishant.

4. It is stated that on reconsideration and reconciliation, the complainant and the first petitioner have decided to resume their married life, and decided to live together along with their family and infant son; and that, the complainant is no longer interested in pursuing these proceedings so as to ensure peace and harmony.

5. The complainant specifically approbates the settlement and prays that the proceedings be closed since she is no longer interested in pursuing the same.

6. Counsel for the State submits that looking to the overall circumstances, and since the parties concerned have amicably resolved their disputes, and where the complainant and the first petitioner have decided to resume their married life and the complainant does not wish to pursue her complaint any further; no useful purpose will be served in continuing with these proceedings.

7. Consequently, and looking to the decisions of the Supreme Court in Gian Singh v. State of Punjab, (2012) 10 SCC303 which has referred to a number of matters for the proposition that even a non-compoundable offence can also be quashed on the ground of a settlement agreement between the offender and the victim, if the circumstances so warrant; by observing as under:

58. ....However, certain offences which overwhelmingly and predominantly bear civil flavour having arisen out of civil, mercantile, commercial, financial, partnership or such like transactions or the offences arising out of matrimony, particularly relating to dowry, etc. or the family dispute, where the wrong is basically to the victim and the offender and the victim have settled all disputes between them amicably, irrespective of the fact that such offences have not been made compoundable, the High Court may within the framework of its inherent power, quash the criminal proceeding or criminal complaint or FIR if it is satisfied that on the face of such settlement, there is hardly any likelihood of the offender being convicted and by not quashing the criminal proceedings, justice shall be casualty and ends of justice shall be defeated.

And also in Narinder Singh and Ors. v. State of Punjab and Anr. 2014(2) Crimes 67 (SC) where the Supreme Court held as follows:

29. In view of the aforesaid discussion, we sum up and lay down the following principles by which the High Court would be guided in giving adequate treatment to the settlement between the parties and exercising its power under Section 482 of the Code while accepting the settlement and quashing the proceedings or refusing to accept the settlement with direction to continue with the criminal proceedings:

29. 1 Power conferred under Section 482 of the Code is to be distinguished from the power which lies in the Court to compound the offences under Section 320 of the Code. No doubt, under Section 482 of the Code, the High Court has inherent power to quash the criminal proceedings even in those cases which are not compoundable, where the parties have settled the matter between themselves. However, this power is to be exercised sparingly and with caution. 29.2 When the parties have reached the settlement and on that basis petition for quashing the criminal proceedings is filed, the guiding factor in such cases would be to secure: (i) ends of justice, or (ii) to prevent abuse of the process of any Court. While exercising the power the High Court is to form an opinion on either of the aforesaid two objectives. 29.3 Such a power is not to be exercised in those prosecutions which involve heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc. Such offences are not private in nature and have a serious impact on society. Similarly, for offences alleged to have been committed under special statute like the Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by Public Servants while working in that capacity are not to be quashed merely on the basis of compromise between the victim and the offender. 29.4 On the other hand, those criminal cases having overwhelmingly and pre-dominantly civil character, particularly those arising out of commercial transactions or arising out of matrimonial relationship or family disputes should be quashed when the parties have resolved their entire disputes among themselves. 29.5 While exercising its powers, the High Court is to examine as to whether the possibility of conviction is remote and bleak and continuation of criminal cases would put the accused to great oppression and prejudice and extreme injustice would be caused to him by not quashing the criminal cases. 29.6 Offences under Section 307 Indian Penal Code would fall in the category of heinous and serious offences and therefore is to be generally treated as crime against the society and not against the individual alone. However, the High Court would not rest its decision merely because there is a mention of Section 307 Indian Penal Code in the FIR or the charge is framed under this provision. It would be open to the High Court to examine as to whether incorporation of Section 307 Indian Penal Code is there for the sake of it or the prosecution has collected sufficient evidence, which if proved, would lead to proving the charge under Section 307 Indian Penal Code. For this purpose, it would be open to the High Court to go by the nature of injury sustained, whether such injury is inflicted on the vital/delegate parts of the body, nature of weapons used etc. Medical report in respect of injuries suffered by the victim can generally be the guiding factor. On the basis of this prima facie analysis, the High Court can examine as to whether there is a strong possibility of conviction or the chances of conviction are remote and bleak. In the former case it can refuse to accept the settlement and quash the criminal proceedings whereas in the later case it would be permissible for the High Court to accept the plea compounding the offence based on complete settlement between the parties. At this stage, the Court can also be swayed by the fact that the settlement between the parties is going to result in harmony between them which may improve their future relationship. 29.7 While deciding whether to exercise its power under Section 482 of the Code or not, timings of settlement play a crucial role. Those cases where the settlement is arrived at immediately after the alleged commission of offence and the matter is still under investigation, the High Court may be liberal in accepting the settlement to quash the criminal proceedings/investigation. It is because of the reason that at this stage the investigation is still on and even the charge sheet has not been filed. Likewise, those cases where the charge is framed but the evidence is yet to start or the evidence is still at infancy stage, the High Court can show benevolence in exercising its powers favourably, but after prima facie assessment of the circumstances/material mentioned above. On the other hand, where the prosecution evidence is almost complete or after the conclusion of the evidence the matter is at the stage of argument, normally the High Court should refrain from exercising its power under Section 482 of the Code, as in such cases the trial court would be in a position to decide the case finally on merits and to come a conclusion as to whether the offence under Section 307 Indian Penal Code is committed or not. Similarly, in those cases where the conviction is already recorded by the trial court and the matter is at the appellate stage before the High Court, mere compromise between the parties would not be a ground to accept the same resulting in acquittal of the offender who has already been convicted by the trial court. Here charge is proved under Section 307 Indian Penal Code and conviction is already recorded of a heinous crime and, therefore, there is no question of sparing a convict found guilty of such a crime.

And specifically in respect of matrimonial disputes in Jitendra Raghuvanshi & Ors. v. Babita Raghuvanshi & Anr. (2013) 4 SCC58 where the Supreme Court held as follows:

15. In our view, it is the duty of the courts to encourage genuine settlements of matrimonial disputes, particularly, when the same are on considerable increase. Even if the offences are non-compoundable, if they relate to matrimonial disputes and the Court is satisfied that the parties have settled the same amicably and without any pressure, we hold that for the purpose of securing ends of justice, Section 320 of the Code would not be a bar to the exercise of power of quashing of FIR, complaint or the subsequent criminal proceedings.

16. There has been an outburst of matrimonial disputes in recent times. They institution of marriage occupies an important place and it has an important role to play in the society. Therefore, every effort should be made in the interest of the individuals in order to enable them to settle down in life and live peacefully. If the parties ponder over their defaults and terminate their disputes amicably by mutual agreement instead of fighting it out in a court of law, in order to do complete justice in the matrimonial matters, the courts should be less hesitant in exercising their extraordinary jurisdiction. It is trite to state that the power under Section 482 should be exercised sparingly and with circumspection only when the Court is convinced, on the basis of material on record, that allowing the proceedings to continue would be an abuse of process of court or that the ends of justice require that the proceedings ought to be quashed.

I am of the opinion that this matter deserves to be given a quietus since the complainant and the first petitioner have decided to resume their married life and look after their infant son, and wish to maintain peace and cordiality between themselves and the family.

8. Consequently, the petition is allowed, and FIR No.377/2013 registered at police station Palam Village under sections 406/498-A/34 IPC, and all proceedings emanating therefrom, are hereby quashed.

9. The petition is disposed off. SUDERSHAN KUMAR MISRA Judge
SEPTEMBER19 2014 dr

SooperKanoon - India's Premier Online Legal Search - sooperkanoon.com