CRL.M.C. 2339/2026

1. The petitioners have filed the present petition under Section 528 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 [BNSS] (corresponding to Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 [Cr PC]), seeking quashing of FIR No. 464/2018 dated 28.08.2018 registered at Police Station Mukherjee Nagar under Sections 498A/406/34 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 [IPC], alongwith all proceedings emanating therefrom, on the ground of settlement arrived at between the parties.

2. Issue notice. Ms. Manjeet Arya, learned Additional Public

Prosecutor, accepts notice on behalf of the State. Mr. Ayush Kumar, learned counsel, accepts notice on behalf of respondent No.2.

3. The petitioners are present in Court and have been identified by their learned counsel as well as by the Investigating Officer. Respondent No. 2 is also present in person and has been duly identified by her learned counsel and the Investigating Officer.

4. The petition is taken up for disposal with the consent of learned counsel for the parties.

5. Petitioner No. 1 and respondent No. 2 were married on 14.02.2017 in accordance with Hindu rites and ceremonies. However, owing to matrimonial discord and temperamental differences, the parties have been living separately since 22.10.2017. No child has been born out of the said wedlock.

6. Respondent No. 2 lodged a complaint before the Crime Against Women Cell, which culminated in the registration of the impugned FIR dated 28.08.2018 against the petitioners. The FIR was registered at the instance of respondent No. 2, who was the wife of petitioner No. 1, and petitioner No. 2 is the mother of petitioner No. 1.

7. A chargesheet was subsequently filed on 14.09.2020 against the petitioners herein and the father of petitioner No. 1. However, the father of petitioner No. 1 passed away on 23.05.2021, and accordingly, the proceedings against him stood abated.

8. During the pendency of the proceedings, the parties have entered into a settlement before Delhi Mediation Centre, Rohini District Courts, recorded in a Settlement Deed dated 17.10.2025, whereby the total settlement amount has been agreed at Rs.4,00,000. Out of the said amount, petitioner No. 1 has already paid a sum of Rs.2,50,000, alongwith certain jewellery/articles towards dowry/stridhan, in full and final settlement of alimony and maintenance (past, present, and future), which has been duly accepted by respondent No. 2. The balance amount of Rs.1,50,000 is to be paid at the time of quashing of the FIR, and a cheque for the same has been handed over to respondent No. 2 in Court.

9. Learned counsel for the parties confirm that the settlement has been arrived at voluntarily and without any coercion or undue pressure.

10. Pursuant to the settlement, the marriage between the parties has been dissolved by a decree of divorce by mutual consent dated 13.02.2026, passed by the Family Court, Rohini Courts, in HMA

11. In light of the aforesaid, parties seek quashing of the impugned

FIR.

12. Notwithstanding that the offence under Section 498A of the IPC is non-compoundable, the Supreme Court has recognized that High Courts may, in appropriate circumstances, exercise their powers under Section 528 of the BNSS (corresponding to Section 482 of the Cr PC) to quash criminal proceedings on the basis of a settlement between the accused and the complainant, even in respect of such offences, provided that no larger public interest is prejudiced.

13. The Supreme Court, in Gian Singh v. State of Punjab & Anr.¹ has held as follows:

58. Where the High Court quashes a criminal proceeding having regard to the fact that the dispute between the offender and the victim has been settled although the offences are not compoundable, it does so as in its opinion, continuation of criminal proceedings will be an exercise in futility and justice in the case demands that the dispute between the parties is put to an end and peace is restored; securing the ends of justice being the ultimate guiding factor. No doubt, crimes are acts which have harmful effect on the public and consist in wrongdoing that seriously endangers and threatens the well-being of the society and it is not safe to leave the crime-doer only because he and the victim have settled the dispute amicably or that the victim has been paid compensation, yet certain crimes have been made compoundable in law, with or without the permission of the court. In respect of serious offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc., or other offences of mental depravity under IPC or offences of moral turpitude under special statutes, like the Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity, the settlement between the offender and the victim can have no legal sanction at all. However, certain offences which overwhelmingly and predominantly bear civil flavour having arisen out of civil, mercantile, commercial, financial, partnership or such like transactions or the offences arising out of matrimony, particularly relating to dowry, etc. or the family dispute, where the wrong is basically to the victim and the offender and the victim have settled all disputes between them amicably, irrespective of the fact that such offences have not been made compoundable, the High Court may within the framework of its inherent power, quash the criminal proceeding or criminal complaint or FIR if it is satisfied that on the face of such settlement, there is hardly any likelihood of the offender being convicted and by not quashing the criminal proceedings, justice shall be casualty and ends of justice shall be defeated. The above list is illustrative and not exhaustive. Each case will depend on its own facts and no hard-and-fast category can be prescribed.²

Further, in *Narinder Singh & Ors. v. State of Punjab & Anr.*³, the Supreme Court has also laid down guidelines for High Courts while accepting settlement deeds between parties and quashing the proceedings. The relevant observations in the said decision read as under: 29. In view of the aforesaid discussion, we sum up and lay down the following principles by which the High Court would be guided in giving adequate treatment to the settlement between the parties and exercising its power under Section 482 of the Code while accepting the settlement and quashing the proceedings or refusing to accept the settlement with direction to continue with the criminal proceedings:

29.1. Power conferred under Section 482 of the Code is to be distinguished from the power which lies in the Court to compound the offences under Section 320 of the Code. No doubt, under Section 482 of the Code, the High Court has inherent power to quash the criminal proceedings even in those cases which are not compoundable, where the parties have settled the matter between themselves. However, this power is to be exercised sparingly and with caution.

29.2. When the parties have reached the settlement and on that basis petition for quashing the criminal proceedings is filed, the guiding factor in such cases would be to secure:

- (i) ends of justice, or
- (ii) to prevent abuse of the process of any court.

While exercising the power the High Court is to form an opinion on either of the aforesaid two objectives.

29.3. Such a power is not to be exercised in those prosecutions which involve heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc. Such offences are not private in nature and have a serious impact on society. Similarly, for the offences alleged to have been committed under special statute like the Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity are not to be quashed merely on the basis of compromise between the victim and the offender.

29.4. On the other hand, those criminal cases having overwhelmingly and predominantly civil character, particularly those arising out of commercial transactions or arising out of matrimonial relationship or family disputes should be quashed when the parties have resolved their entire disputes among themselves.

29.5. While exercising its powers, the High Court is to examine as to whether the possibility of conviction is remote and bleak and continuation of criminal cases would put the accused to great oppression and prejudice and extreme injustice would be caused to him by not quashing the criminal cases.⁴

14. In the present case, the dispute between the parties emanates from a matrimonial relationship, which has already been dissolved by a decree of divorce. Applying the principles laid down by the Supreme Court, it is evident that respondent No. 2 has unequivocally affirmed before this Court that the settlement has been entered into of her own free will. In such circumstances, the possibility of the criminal proceedings culminating in a conviction appears remote, and their continuation would serve no useful purpose, while unnecessarily burdening the judicial system and expending public resources.

15. The settlement provides for payment of a total sum of Rs.4,00,000 to respondent No. 2, who confirms that the entire agreed amount has already been received by her. There is, therefore, no legal impediment to granting the relief sought.

16. In view of the foregoing, the present petition is allowed, and FIR

No. 464/2018 dated 28.08.2018, registered at Police Station Mukherjee Nagar under Sections 498A/406/34 of the IPC, alongwith all consequential proceedings arising therefrom, is hereby quashed.

17. The parties shall remain bound by the terms of the settlement.

18. The petition accordingly stands disposed of.
