

Premjit Kaur Vs. Harsinder Singh

Premjit Kaur Vs. Harsinder Singh

SooperKanoon Citation : sooperkanoon.com/648151

Court : Supreme Court of India

Decided On : Mar-17-1980

Reported in : (1982)2SCC167

Judge : O. Chinnappa Reddy and; v.D. Tulzapurkar, JJ.

Acts : Indian Penal Code \(IPC\), \(IPC\) 1860 - Sections 191, 192 ; Code Of Criminal Procedure \(Cr.P.C\), 1973 - Sections 195 (1)(b)(i), 193

Appeal No. : Criminal Appeal No. 204 of 1980

Appellant : Premjit Kaur

Respondent : Harsinder Singh

Disposition : Appeal Allowed

Judgement :

V.D. TULZAPURKAR, J.

1. Special leave granted.

2. We have heard counsel on both sides and we are satisfied that the view of the High Court is clearly erroneous that simply because Sections 191 and 192 of the Indian Penal Code are not mentioned in Section 195(1)(b)(i) of the Criminal Procedure Code, sanction for prosecution could not be issued. Obviously,

Sections 191 and 192 of the Indian Penal Code, are the sections which define offences for which punishment is provided for in Section 193 and Section 193 is admittedly mentioned in Section 195(1)(b)(i) of the Criminal Procedure Code. The view of the High Court being clearly erroneous we feel that the judgment of the High Court be quashed. We accordingly quash the same. We would, however, like to observe that it will be open to the respondent to raise whatever defence he wants to raise in the prosecution that may be launched against him.

SooperKanoon - India's Premier Online Legal Search - sooperkanoon.com