FOR THE SECOND CIRCUIT

SYLLABUS

1. A claim against a steamship corporation under 33 of the Merchant Marine Act is provable and dischargeable in a proceeding to reorganize the corporation under 77B of the Bankruptcy Act. P. 299 U. S. 81 .
2. In a proceeding to reorganize a steamship corporation under 77B of the Bankruptcy Act, the District Court has jurisdiction to enjoin the prosecution of an action at law instituted against the corporation before the petition for reorganization was filed, by the administrator of a deceased seaman, seeking to recover damages, under 33 of the Merchant Marine Act, for alleged negligence of the corporation, assigned as the cause of the seaman's death. P. 299 U. S. 82 .
3. The granting of the injunction rests in the sound discretion of the court. P. 299 U. S. 83 .
4. Exercise of the power to stay suits against the debtor, conferred by 77B(c)(10) of the Bankruptcy Act, must accord with the particular circumstances of the case and be guided by justice to the claimants, the debtor, and the estate. P. 299 U. S. 83 .
5. Reorganization proceedings under 77B of the Bankruptcy Act, are not inherently inconsistent with jury trial for the liquidation of claims under 33 of the Merchant Marine Act. P. 299 U. S. 84 .
6. In support of an application for leave to prosecute an action at law which had been stayed by an injunction issued ex parte in a proceeding to reorganize the debtor corporation under 77 B of the Bankruptcy Act, there was evidence tending to show that the estate would not be unjustly affected, because the debtor's liability in the action was covered by insurance and defense of the action would be borne by the insurer.

HELD

(1) That the burden was upon the debtor and the trustees in reorganization to prove that the estate would be affected unjustly. P. 299 U. S. 84 .

(2) Definite evidence respecting the insurance being within the control of the debtor and trustees, their failure to produce it tends strongly to discredit their opposition to the application and, by inference, to support it. P. 299 U. S. 85 .

(3) In the absence of a showing of facts sufficient to require a finding that liquidation of applicant's claim by jury trial would encumber the reorganization proceedings, the debtor and trustees were not entitled to have the injunction continued in force against applicant. P. 299 U. S. 86 .

(4) It was abuse of discretion to deny the application even if, as assumed by the court below, the insurance was less than the applicant's full claim, this partly in view of doubts whether, under the New York law, the insurer would be liable if the claim were liquidated through reference to a master in the reorganization proceeding, rather than through trial by jury. P. 299 U. S. 87 .

82 F.2d 289 reversed.

Certiorari 298 U.S. 649, to review the affirmance of an order of the District Court in reorganization proceedings under 77B of the Bankruptcy Act. The order denied leave to prosecute an action at law for death by negligence, and referred the claim to a special master. For an opinion of the court below earlier than the one cited above, see 80 F.2d 859.

MR. JUSTICE BUTLER delivered the opinion of the Court.

Petitioner is the administrator of the estate of Coy E. Foust and, February 1, 1934, commenced an action at law under 33 of the Merchant Marine Act of 1920  [Footnote 1 ] in the United States court for the Southern District of New York against the Munson Steamship Lines. His complaint alleges that, February 27, 1930, while deceased was at work for defendant as seaman on its steamship Mundelta, his death was caused by defendant's negligence and, for the benefit of petitioner as surviving father, prays damages in the sum of $15,000. Defendant's answer denies the negligence charged against it and alleges decedent's death was caused by risks assumed and his own negligence.

June 11, 1934, defendant filed its petition for reorganization under 77B of the Bankruptcy Act.  [Footnote 2 ] The petition did not refer to the administrator's claim or to the action brought for its enforcement. Two days after it was filed, the court entered a decree that approved the petition as properly filed, declared the debtor unable to meet its debts as they mature, determined it required relief under 77B, appointed trustees to take and operate its property and, inter alia, enjoined the institution or prosecution of any action at law against the debtor.

January 26, 1935, petitioner applied for leave to prosecute his suit and supported his application by an affidavit of his attorney suggesting: the debtor is covered by liability insurance; if petitioner gets judgment, he will sue insurer to enforce its liability under 109 of the Insurance Law of New York;  [Footnote 3 ] the stay is unjust to the surviving father, gives no advantage to the debtor, and benefits only the insurer. The affidavit asserts that plaintiff is entitled to a jury trial, and that prosecution of his action at law should not be stayed. The trustees, by affidavit of one of their attorneys, opposed petitioner's application, but did not say that the debtor is not protected by insurance. The court denied petitioner's motion and ordered that a special master be appointed to report on the claim. Petitioner applied to the Circuit Court of Appeals for leave to appeal. After hearing the parties, it filed an opinion announcing that appeal would be granted, but that the argument would be confined to the question whether the action can be stayed. Later, the court entered an order unqualifiedly allowing the appeal. Meyer v. Kenmore Granville Hotel Co., 297 U. S. 160 , 297 U. S. 165 .

After argument, limited as suggested, the court, in its first opinion on the appeal, held petitioner's claim provable and dischargeable and the District Court empowered to stay prosecution of the suit. In re Munson S.S. Lines, 80 F.2d 859. Then there remained for consideration the question -- which had not been argued -- whether, in the exertion of that power, the District Court abused its discretion. The court suggested that, if, petitioner would stipulate not to use as a claim against the estate any judgment he might recover, there could be no objection to allowing his action to proceed. It held the appeal should not be finally determined without giving the parties a chance to present their views as to whether the District Court ought not to allow the action to proceed and directed that, if petitioner failed to file such a stipulation within a specified time, supplemental briefs would be received relating to the propriety of the exercise of the judicial discretion of the District Court. Petitioner having declined so to stipulate, the parties submitted their briefs. In his, petitioner stated that, under the insurance policy, the first $2,500 of petitioner's claim would be borne by the insured; that the value of the claim was not over $5,000, and that such stipulation would mean that the administrator would relinquish a substantial part of his claim. Upon consideration of the additional briefs, the court, in its second opinion on the appeal, held that the District Court had not abused discretion, and affirmed the order. In re Munson S.S. Lines, 82 F.2d 289.

As a reason in support of the stay, the first opinion states that jurors often return far larger verdicts in negligence cases than reason justifies, and that the trustees have a right to take that fact into account and not to accede to a method for the liquidation of tort claims that is unusual in bankruptcy unless the ordinary method of proof before a special master would imperil the claimant's rights. In its second opinion, the court adopted and emphasized the fact stated in appellant's supplemental brief to the effect that the policy covered not over one-half the value of petitioner's claim. It decided that, as the debtor's estate had a substantial interest in the amount of the recovery, the District Judge did not abuse his discretion. The court said: "That mode was more convenient and expeditious than any other and was plainly an advantage to the estate." It added:

"If the claim had been fully covered by the insurance, so that the carrier was primarily liable for the entire damage, we might have reached a different conclusion; but, under the circumstances, we think the determination of the court below was justified," and affirmed the order appealed from.

The Circuit Court of Appeals rightly held petitioner's claim provable and dischargeable and the District Judge empowered to stay proceedings in the suit.

Section 77B gives to the District Judge power, to be exerted in accordance with its provisions, to alter the rights of creditors or any class of them. Subdivision (b)(10) declares the term "creditors" shall include, for all the purposes of the section, the holders of claims of whatever character and whether or not they would otherwise constitute provable claims under the Bankruptcy Act; that the term "claims" includes debts, securities, other than stock, liens, or other interests of whatever character. Subdivision (h) directs that the final decree shall discharge the debtor from its debts and liabilities. Subdivision (c)(8) provides that, if a plan is not proposed or accepted, or if proposed and accepted but not confirmed, the court may direct the estate to be liquidated. Subdivision (k)(4), upon order for liquidation, authorizes to be proved as provided in 57 claims provable under 63,  [Footnote 4 ] but declares that none of the sections mentioned in subdivision (k) except subdivisions (g), (i), (j), and (m) of 57  [Footnote 5 ] and subdivisions a and e of 70  [Footnote 6 ] shall apply in proceedings under 77B unless and until an order has been made directing liquidation of the estate. Mere reading of pertinent parts of the above-mentioned provisions makes it plain that "creditors" and "claims," as used in proceedings under 77B, are more comprehensive than in the act before the addition of that section. See American Surety Co. v. Marotta, 287 U. S. 513 , 287 U. S. 517 . Undoubtedly "creditors," "claims," and "liabilities" to be dealt with in the reorganization proceeding include petitioner, the cause of action he asserts, and the judgment he seeks to recover.

Section 77B(c)(10), enlarging power conferred by 11,  [Footnote 7 ] broadly declares the judge "may enjoin or stay the commencement or continuation of suits against the debtor until after final decree." The exclusive jurisdiction given the court over the debtor and his property, subdivision (a), does not imply that the commencement or the carrying on of suits against the debtor must be enjoined, or that all claims must be referred to a master for consideration and report. Subdivision (c)(11). See In re Prudence Bonds Corp., 75 F.2d 262, 263. The power to stay does not imply that it is to be, or appropriately may be, exerted without regard to the facts. The granting or withholding of injunction is left to the discretion of the court.

Was the denial of petitioner's application for leave to prosecute his action at law an abuse of discretion?

The record contains no opinion or statement of the District Judge to disclose the grounds on which he rested his denial. In reorganization proceedings, neither the act nor any rule of law entitles debtors or trustees as a matter of right to enjoin the trial of actions such as that brought by petitioner. The court is to exercise the power conferred by subdivision (c)(10) according to the particular circumstances of the case, and is to be guided by considerations that, under the law, make for the ascertainment of what is just to the claimants, the debtor, and the estate. Osborn v. U.S. Bank, 9 Wheat. 738, 22 U. S. 866 ; The Styria v. Morgan, 186 U. S. 1 , 186 U. S. 9 ; Langnes v. Green, 282 U. S. 531 , 282 U. S. 541 ; Burns v. United States, 287 U. S. 216 , 287 U. S. 222 -223. By 33 of the Merchant Marine Act, under which the petitioner sued, Congress ordained that, upon claims injuries or death suffered in the course of their employment, seamen or their personal representatives may maintain actions at law for damages with the right of trial by jury. The reorganization proceedings are not inherently inconsistent with jury trial for the liquidation of such claims. Unless satisfactorily shown that prosecution of petitioner's action would embarrass the administration of the debtor's estate, the District Court should have granted leave.

There is no support for the stay in the suggestion of the Circuit Court of Appeals to the effect that, in negligence cases, juries often give verdicts larger than reason justifies. It is to be remembered that, if without support in the evidence or contrary to the law, they may be set aside. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. v. Coogan, 271 U. S. 472 , 271 U. S. 478 ; Gunning v. Cooley, 281 U. S. 90 ; Minneapolis, St.P. & S.S.M. Ry. v. Moquin, 283 U. S. 520 , 283 U. S. 521 . It must be assumed that the courts, by appropriate exertion of their power, will adequately safeguard against verdicts shown to be arbitrary and unjust. While 33 of the Merchant Marine Act remains in force, courts may not assume that claims there specified cannot be justly liquidated by jury trial. Even if shown generally to attend jury trials, the suggested danger would not warrant denial of petitioner's application. We have recently said:

"Maintenance of the jury as a factfinding body is of such importance and occupies so firm a place in our history and jurisprudence that any seeming curtailment of the right to a jury trial should be scrutinized with the utmost care."

The record does not sustain the statement that the mode of liquidation ordered is an advantage to the estate. On the contrary, the petitioner's verified application for leave to appeal states that the attorney for debtor in the action at law

"represents the insurance carrier and consequently the defense of this case will impose no burden

whatsoever, either financial or otherwise, upon the trustees herein or their counsel."

That statement has not been denied, nor has it been suggested by the debtor or trustees that the insurer is not bound under the policy at its own expense to defend the suit.

Respondent suggests that the record fails to show that the policy was issued in New York, and insists that, unless it was, the insurance may not be taken into account in determining whether the District Court abused its discretion. The point is without merit. The affidavit submitted by petitioner states in substance that the debtor is protected by liability insurance, and that any judgment recovered by petitioner on his claim will have to be paid by the insurer; that, if allowed to establish his claim by jury trial, petitioner will then sue insurer under 109 of the New York Insurance Law for the amount, if any, awarded to him, and that the only party benefiting by the delay is the insurance company. It is true that the affidavit does not directly state that the policy is governed by 109, or that it contains the provisions required by that section, but the affidavit is sufficient adequately to suggest that petitioner claimed that insurer's liability to the debtor is in accordance with the provisions of that section. The debtor and trustees had notice of his application for release from the stay; the trustees appeared to oppose it. They failed to produce the policy or to disclose any of its provisions or whether it was issued in New York.

The injunction was a comprehensive one plainly broad enough to cover petitioner's claim; it was entered without disclosure of the existence of that claim or the pending suit and before petitioner had opportunity to be heard on the propriety of making it apply to him. On his application for leave to bring his suit to trial, petitioner was seeking to remove the stay, and, under the circumstances, the position of debtor and trustees opposing him

and insisting that the restraint be continued was not substantially unlike that of suitors for injunction; the issue was whether liquidation of his claim in that manner would unjustly affect the estate. The facts bearing on that question were known to, or within the control of, the debtor and trustees. They had, and readily could submit to the court, definite evidence in respect of the insurance. Their failure to bring it forward tends strongly to discredit their opposition to petitioner's motion. The circumstances warrant the inference that the facts are not more favorable to respondent than those indicated by the affidavit as the grounds on which the petitioner sought release from the stay, and that, if disclosed, the policy or other evidence as to the insurance would not tend to support injunction against petitioner. Runkle v. Burnham, 153 U. S. 216 , 153 U. S. 225 ; Kirby v. Tallmadge, 160 U. S. 379 , 160 U. S. 383 ; Mammoth Oil Co. v. United States, 275 U. S. 13 , 275 U. S. 52 . The burden of frank disclosure was upon the debtor and trustees. Keystone Driller Co. v. Excavator Co., 290 U. S. 240 , 290 U. S. 244 . Cf. 2 High on Injunctions (4th Ed.) 1474. In the absence of a showing of facts sufficient to require a finding that liquidation of petitioner's claim by jury trial would encumber the reorganization proceedings, the debtor and trustees were not entitled to have the injunction continued in force against petitioner. Langnes v. Green, 282 U. S. 531 , 282 U. S. 541 .

The Circuit Court of Appeals dealt with the case according to the facts indicated in petitioner's supporting affidavit as modified by the statement taken from his supplemental brief to the effect that the policy did not cover the first $2,500 of the debtor's liability. Petitioner emphasizes the fact that the record does not show the modification, and says that his statement as to the amount deductible was made in explanation of his refusal to stipulate that he would not file against the estate a claim based on the judgment, if any, obtained in the pending suit. 80 F.2d 859, 861. He earnestly insists that the court erred in predicating its decision upon that statement. As, in the view we take of the case, the fact that debtor is only partially insured is not of controlling significance, we do not pass upon that assignment of error.

Assuming that the insurance did not extend to the first $2,500 and the value of petitioner's claim was not more than $5,000, we are of opinion that the order appealed from was an abuse of the discretion vested in the District Court by 77B(c)(10). If petitioner's claim shall be established upon report of a master, grave doubts will arise as to the liability of the insurer to the petitioner. The case would not be within the words of 109 of the New York Insurance Law. Attempt by petitioner to recover from insurer would encounter difficult questions of construction of a state statute as to which federal courts are not the final authority. Morehead v. New York, 298 U. S. 587 . The imposition of that method of establishing petitioner's claim is liable to expose him to serious peril of substantial loss. On the other hand, if petitioner is permitted to liquidate his claim by jury trial and shall get judgment, and execution thereon shall be returned unsatisfied because of the debtor's insolvency, his case would appear to be plainly within the words and intent of 109. That section applying, petitioner would be entitled to maintain an action against the insurer for the amount of his judgment, but not exceeding the amount of insurer's liability to the debtor under the policy.

There is nothing in the record to warrant a finding that liquidation of petitioner's claim by trial of his pending action at law would hinder, burden, delay, or be at all inconsistent with the pending corporate reorganization proceeding under 77B. Injunction against that method of establishing the debtor's liability, if any there is, ought not to stand.
